Final Rush To Register House. Pushes List To Approximately 45,300

NEARLY AS HIGH AS FORMER RECORD

Approximately 45,300 voters are egistered to vote in the election November 8. In a last minute rush to qualify, 568 voters appeared in the Office of Permanent Registration Monday, October 3 and registered, bringing the book total to 45,396 registered voters. From this must be deducted the names of persons who have died and have moved from the voting district. This de-duction will not reach 100, Regis-tration Chief Clerk A. Lewis Conn said today.

Second Highest

The registration for the November election is the second highest ever seen in Lawrence county. In 1940, the peak year, there were over 46,000 registered. Following that year, several thousand voters' names were removed from the registration lists, due to failure to vote within a period of two years.

The total registration Monday showed 302 Republicans, 263 Democrats, 1 Prohibitionist and 2 In-dependents. The total registration from September 19, when the books were opened, to Monday night, Oc-tober 3, when they closed shows the following new registrations. New Castle, Pa. Funeral Home & Business Office Funeral Home & Residence Moody at Delaware 316-320 East North Street

We had in mind making some improvements in the location and effeciency of our Funeral Home, which we feel is necessary for us to improve the work we do, as there has been many changes in traffic and business locations, where we are at the present time. We were asked to get the sentiment of the neighborhood homes in our North Hill community, which we did. We are glad to say that everyone in our community, excepting two, and they were not at home when we tried to contact them, were willing for us to make these improvements.

Therefore, we feel it is our duty to thank those neighbors and friends, and also our fellow Funeral Directors, for what they have done towards satisfying what the City Zoning Board Even though as yet we have had no answer from the Zoning Board, we feel that we have waited long enough, and therefore Mrs. Campbell and myself wish to extend our thanks for the kindness of the neighbors and friends, who were so willing to have us make these improvements.

Therefore, at this time, we say "THANKS".

May Be Good-Bye To France (By HENRY McLEMORE)

PARIS-This is probably my last visit to France. I will not be at all surprised if, when I next apply for a visa, the authorities not only say no, but remind me that my picture adorns the post office walls and that I am wanted by the police.

For, you see, I have committed a grievous crime since coming to Faris. If I had done no more horrible thing than flog a gendarme or clope with the President's daughter, the chances are that I would have been forgiven, or at the worst, given a one-day sentence in the bastille, with one day off for good behavior.

But mine, as I have said, is a grievous crime.

Do Not Like Wine

I have openly admitted, not once, not twice, but a score of times, that I do not like wine. I have admitted it in cocktail lounges, in hotel dining rooms, in cafes in the Bois de Boulogne, and to Frenchmen who fell back in horror at what they considered my blasphemy. Heaven knows that I tried to keep my aversion for wine a secret. that such an admittance would end forever my hopes of being what I have dreamed of being for years and years—a gay, wise, knowing boulevardier. I knew full well that as soon as it was known that wine was not for me those charming, intimate midnight suppers of cold bird and a bottle of General Electric '26 were out.

But, confound it, I just couldn't keep up the pretense any longer. I had to face the fact that wine—no matter if it bubbled like a baby after a meal or gat will as a mouse, was old enough to have retreated.

after a meal or sat still as a mouse, was old enough to have retreated with Napoleon from Russia or was young enough to know all about General Vaughan-was not for me.

The stuff gives me a heartburn.

That Is The Truth Let Lucius Beebe laugh if he wants to, but that is the truth. For hours after a bottle of wine—any wine—I feel like an amateur sword swallower. And it doesn't taste good to me either. Just a shade above vinegar, according to my taste. Kind of sour-like.

The French can't conceive of a man who doesn't like wine. To order a meal without it makes just about as much sense to them as ordering a bedroom without a bed. Water is the liquid they can't abide. Babies in high chairs aren't given water until a spoonful or two of wine has been stirred in to take off the horrid water taste. And it is said that many Frenchmen always pour some wine into the tub be-fore bathing. The thought of coming into contact with pure, unadulte-

I thought the management of the Cafe de Paris was going to call for the cops when, after waving away the wine steward, I asked the waiter if he could serve me some iced tea with my meal. He couldn't have been more shocked if I had struck him across the face with my plate of filet of bonne femme. And, when he realized that I was in earnest, he couldn't have taken longer to prepare it if I had asked

Seek Price Increase

Several European nations strongly abetted by the Union of South Africa have been urging our Treasury to increase the price of gold still further, a move which would benefit them immensely but would have a disastrous effect on our economy. To the credit of Secretary Snyder, he has steadily refused to yield to such pressure, and to do so would cause a storm of indignation all over the country. The faith of the American people in their government was severely shaken when they found out, too late, that they had been buncoed by the Gold Reserve Act, and a second attempt would not find them so docile. The popu-lace of today has quite a different viewpoint from that of 1933, when bewildered multitude meekly accepted any crackpot idea that the brain trust put fortii, and would have uttered never a murmur if a bureau of sub-standards had been set up in Washington.

The nations of Europe abandoned the gold standard reluctantly and regretfully, from sheer force necessity; the action of the United States was taken with hey-nonny-nonny in a spirit of adventure and experiment. There was no valid reason for suspend ing free conversion, for we had a superabundant store of goid and the balance of trade was consistently in our favor year after year. There is no reason now why gold payments should not be re sumed, and it is to be hoped that the lessons learned the hard way by financiers of the past as to the value of sound money and the inviolability of a government's trust to its people may soon come to the realization of those who shape our fiscal policies.

Hurricane Heads Towards Texas Coast

Hurricane winds of over 100-mile velocity moved toward the South Texas coast as the rich agricultural and industrial sectors prepared for the blow. The storm center moved north-northwest in the Gulf at about 12 miles per hour, passing a point 125 miles east-southeast of Brownville, Texas. Alerted were Galveston, Houston, Freeport, Port Arthur, Beaumont and dozens of small coastal fishing resorts directly in the path of the hurricane. Dangerously high tides brought Gulf coast shipping to a standstill.

Redskins Defeat Steelers 27-14

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 4-(INS)-An apparently exhausted Washing ton Redskin team had to thank Sammy Baugh today for its first victory of the National Pro League season by a 27-14 margin over the Pittsburgh Steelers at Forbes The Skins left the field at halftime last night in Pittsburgh trailing the Steelers, 14-6. But Sammy now in his 13th season soon changed that. He flipped two post-intermission touchdown tosses to put Washington ahead and later steered them to a third which cinched the game. Pittsburgh rolled over the Skins in the first 30 minutes but flubbed several scoring chances that might have completely discouraged a very tired Washington eleven.

"There are many reasons," we usually answer. "Prominent people drive Lincoln Cosmopolitans not merely for the extra comforts they offer-the luxurious 'Salon Styling' of the new interior . . . and the wonderful smoothness of Lincoln power combined with HYDRA-MATIC* - but for the superbly distinctive styling of the Lincoln Cosmopolitan itself."
